Warrego Valles – save as

(contemporary deconstruction of electronic dance music)

This album (7 original tracks + 2 remixes) by the Ljubljana producer duo Warrego Valles titled 'save as' presents a cross-section of musical research the two members have been immersed in for the last year. It's dance music with roots in genres of electro and techno, and with contemporary approach to rhythms and sound palettes creating abstract, dark, dynamics, and pulsating landscape. With this release Warrego Valles are making new steps forward in their unrelentless and uncompromising research of contemporary dance electronics.

The record is being premiered at the Warrego Valles performance on the festival TRESK#10 and via the Kamizdat Rentgen stream, while the physical form (a limited edition USB gatefold) will be available on the festival's fair next day (13.april) and online, including a free name-your-price download and via all standard digital stores.

The music is available to the public for free distribution under the conditions of Creative Commons BY-SA (Attribution-ShareAlike) 4.0 International licence.

Warrego Valles is the blending of two sonic psychonauts who produce exploratory electronic music with clear background in dark dancefloor aesthetics and subtle dashes of activist poetics. In the last few years they made quite a stir in the Slovene electronic music scene with their performances, music videos, a solo record by Nina Hudej (2016), an EP Location Off (2017) and a debut album Botox (2018). The members of the duo are both established electronic music DJs, skilled producers and experienced musicians, who are also active as event managers and promoters of equal opportunities and diversity in electronic music, focused on presenting live alternative electronic acts in Ljubljana.
